LPFA names Local Pension Board

The London Pensions Fund Authority (LPFA) announced today that it has completed the process of appointing all members to its Local Pension Board.

The Local Pension Board will assist LPFA in complying with Local Government Pension Scheme and other regulations; however, the LPFA's main statutory Board remains the decision making body.

Chaired by William Bourne, the Local Pension Board comprises both member and employer representatives:

Employer representatives

Charles Angus
Frank Smith
Sean Brosnan

Member representatives

Omolayo Sokoya
Peter Scales
Simon Steptoe

Due to a strong response and the high quality of applicants, the LPFA has further appointed two more candidates as substitutes to the Local Pension Board:

- Bernadette Jansen (substitute for the employer representative); and,
- Jamie Ratcliff (substitute for the member representative).

The substitute role will include all the duties of a Local Board Member, except for voting rights.

In due course, the LPFA Board may decide to extend the number of Local Pension Board members to include these substitutes as full members.

The first meeting of the LPFA Local Pension Board will take place on 6 July.

NOTES TO EDITORS

About the LPFA (www.lpfa.org.uk)

The London Pensions Fund Authority (LPFA) administers a £4.8bn pension fund providing Local Government Pension Scheme benefits to almost 20,000 employees of 200 not for profit organisations and around 40,000 pensioners, many of whom used to work for the Greater London Council and the Inner London Education Authority.

As well as administering its own fund LPFA provides a comprehensive range of third party pension services from full administration and pensions payroll to staff placement, data cleanse projects, pension websites and benefit statements.

In total, the LPFA runs pensions for some ¼ million people.
